A LOOK AT THE NEAR FUTURE CALLED "GREEN DOSE"

Bioplastic is a material made from renewable sources; that which we use is derived from sugarcane, which regrows and can help limit CO2 emissions in the atmosphere. It can therefore be a good substitute for petroleum-based plastics since its chemical structure makes it more easily broken down and consequently recyclable. We have chosen to offer this material to contribute, even if in a small way, to the preservation of our environment. The continual search for new solutions is certainly the best approach to the future.
